

THINGS YOU SHOULD KEEP CLEAN WITH CARBONOL

SOMETIMES soap-and-water cleanliness is enough. Sometimes aseptic cleanliness is absolutely necessary, and in such cases you should mix Carbonol in the water used in cleaning. A dash of Carbonol in a pail of water gives the whole mixture powerful disinfecting qualities.

Garbage cans and all repositories of refuse should be cleaned with it to kill the germs, to keep away

Carbonol is equally useful in general cleaning. Put it in the water when you mop the floors or wash the woodwork. Use it especially in cleaning the sickroom where there has been contagious disease. Sprinkle it in the cellar before sweeping and the musty smell will disappear.

A sample bottle with booklet will be sent free on request.

Vermont Democrats Make Washington Officials Extremely Tired

BROWN AND BURKE CONTINGENTS FIGHT

Official Doors Besieged with Claimants and Delegations Are Drifting in Loaded with Vocabularies of Choice Epithets.

There may be Democratic differences in Massachusetts as to patronage, but as to intensity they are mild as compared to Vermont, writes the Washington correspondent of the Boston Herald. The Green Mountain state, too, has some collections of customs as well as Boston, and when they are reached these Vermont Democrats can apparently be trusted to "go to it" in a fashion such as even Massachusetts has not yet seen. Thus far as to Vermont, it is chiefly mistletoe lighting, vent, roust, knockdown and drag out kind of fighting. There are two contingents, the Tom Brown contingent, of which National Committeeman Brown of Rutland is the head, and the Jim Burke contingent, of which Mayor Burke of Burlington is chief.

There are no Democratic senators or congressmen from Vermont at Washington, and consequently there have been no congressional plans as to how the Vermont postoffice should be bestowed. But the Vermont Democrats have come right down to the postoffice department on Pennsylvania avenue, and at intervals for weeks they have besieged official doors there. They have reached the stage of calling names, hard names at that, as that as horse-thief, and the end is not yet. Postmaster-General Harbison is credited with being mighty tired with the whole Vermont business, and somehow or other word has come circling around the department that it would be a mighty fine thing if a few good, sensible Vermonters would seek a postoffice now and then in Vermont. If there are any Democrats of that brand in Vermont they might have consideration at the department.

National Committeeman Brown was naturally given the first call in indorsing Vermont postmasters. There being no Democratic congressmen, the final word would be allowed him, under political regulations. But as soon as his recognition was being accorded Brown, alone came Burke. And after both Brown and Burke had had an inning with the postmaster-general, delegations of two, three and four, and so on, began drifting into Washington, loaded with vocabularies of choice epithets.

It has all come to a pass that the rock-ribbed Republican state of Vermont, one of the two that voted for Taft last year, is giving the postoffice department more trouble than all the other New England states put together. The postoffices in Vermont that pay a large salary are few indeed, but that makes no difference to these Democratic contenders.

"Here's something queer," said the dentist. "You say this tooth has never been worked on before, but I find small flakes of gold on my instrument." "I think you have struck my back collar button," replied the victim. —Buffalo Commercial.

CHESTERFIELD, N. H.

Joslyn-Bassett Wedding.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Munroe was the scene of a very pretty wedding Tuesday afternoon, Sept. 16, at 4 o'clock, when their daughter, Miss Blanche Beld Bassett, and Arthur Joslyn were married by Rev. M. J. Osteyce of Hinsdale in the presence of about 15 relatives and intimate friends. The single ring service was used and the bride was given in marriage by her grandfather, John Marshall of Indian Orchard, Mass. The bride march from Lothrop was played softly during the ceremony and the Rosary was played and sung at the close of the ceremony by Mrs. Gladis Caldwell of West Chesterfield. The bride was becomingly attired in blue voile with cream lace and blue satin trimmings and carried a bouquet of white asters and ferns. The ceremony took place in the parlor under an arch of asparagus and clematis. The dining room was decorated with asters, and refreshments were served by Miss Belle Guild and Miss Evelyn Bassett, sister of the bride, both of this town.

Mrs. Joslyn is the second daughter of Mrs. B. C. Munroe and has lived in Chesterfield the past year. Mr. Joslyn is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Joslyn of West Chesterfield. The couple left immediately after the reception for the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Joslyn of West Chesterfield, an uncle of the bridegroom, where the wedding supper was served. After Oct. 1 they will be at home in Westmoreland, where Mr. Joslyn is engaged in the lumber business. They received some very handsome wedding presents, including silver, linen, glass and furniture.
